

Signs are categorized as follows:

Regulatory signs indicate a specific traffic regulation that applies to that section of the road.

Warning signs provide an early indication to road users of potentially hazardous conditions or features on or adjacent to a road. Recurring or moving hazards such as school buses, trains, and wild animals, which may require a driver's quick response, are also included in this category.

Temporary Conditions Signs indicate to a driver that there are construction activities or other temporary and unfamiliar conditions, which may require a quick response.

Guide/Information Signs provide information on route selection, destinations, or distances, as well as on street names and other points of interest.

